It is fair game, of course, for both sides to attack the mental stature of either nominee, though it is doubtful whether purely percongressional approval where any simple dismemberment scheme would fail to stand the test of full debate.

Lesson of 1928

The real estate market today i where the stock market was in 1928. Then when people suddenly discovered that the supply of good stocks was limited, they stampeded one another to buy stocks. Hence the market went to unwarranted high prices and then collapsed in the fall of 1929. Frankly, I think th same thing will some day happen again. People will find that the present supply of good stocks is limited and, before long, will stampede to buy them. This will result in the stock market selling at much higher prices; but finally, through a fear communism or some other bugaboo, prices will again collapse Both houses and stocks are governed by the same law of action and reaction tempered by the frailties of human nature. Sell Now Rather than Buy

During the past few years I have been advising the purchase of homes believing that the then prevailing prices were less than the cost of reproduction. Today, in those sections where there is a scarcity of homes, such real estate is a etter sale than a purchase. This oes not mean that you should sell ourself out of a home, but if you have more than one house this may be the time to cash in on the extra
